

A NEW
KING
AN OINTED:

January 30 1659

With the Manner of the Solemnity

AT HIS INAUGURATION.

And the several
SPEECHES and ADDRESSES.

---

LONDON:

Printed for Liveill Chapwell. 1659.

G74242.25

HARVARD COLLEGE LIBRARY

FROM THE LIBRARY

OF F. L. GAY

JUNE 11, 1916

NEW

ANNOUNCED

Communicated by

the Master of the

and to keep

in that kind

Novelty, especially

the North

possessed many

ple, who according

fancies, have had

same kind of

troubled by

they call it. We possessed Quaker

papers: From

of Malthusian

themselves Fish-

to which black

A
NEW KING
ANOINTED.

Communicated by Letter to a Friend.

S I R,

AS a grateful return for your last Intelligence, and to keep up our so long correspondence in that kinde, I have sent our latest City-Novelty, especially which most concerns you of the Northern parts. We have in England been pestered many years with strange opinionated people, who according to the madness of their inward fancies, have had sundry outward actions of the same similitude, to demonstrate what spungie and frothy Chimera's they build their Religion on, (as they call it :) We have seen the trembling and possessed Quaker; the Dive-dapper, or dipt Anabaptist: From which last, are sprung up a sort of Mushromæ-pickled people, who style themselves Fifth-Monarchy men, (or Millenarian Apes) to which black and cloudy Sect, the Vane Sir Harry is a strong adherer, and they with infinite tokens of joy do receive him for their Earthly Chief; as you shall understand by the sequel.

A 2

There

(4)
There was lately a very great Convention of these kinde of people at their wonted Rendezvous in Colemanstreet, at their old Colledge in Swan-alley, where the Learned of that Fry do (at such Meetings) Hint at things (as they call it) not preach the word, as formerly they termed it. To which place resorted Rogers, Simpson, Feak, Canoe, and the politick Sir Harry, and many others of that crew, not worth the naming. The number being complete, Rogers falls to hinting from that Text:

And when there was no King in Israel, every man did that which was good in his own eyes.

And proceeds thus:

If the people of God found the want of a KING to be such a defect, as that without him, and for want of him, every one followed his own imaginations; and fixed Principles, (such as we retain) were almost quite expunged, and vain conceits were taken by the vulgar (as we see at this day in our times) for fundamentals: If this was so much to be bemoan'd in those days, by a people that lived under the Covenants, and under the Promises, and had Prophets and Seers amongst them (almost as good as any of us, but could not sack about half (so well) then well may we make it our lamentation, in this our dark and gloomy day, that we who have so long waited for our Fifth Monarch, King Jesus, should yet be left here without him, or some in his stead, to be our head and leader in this our bewilderneſſed and thorny Pilgrimage.

Prevention of evils are the best of Cures: And truly

I cannot but think, that we might find out one amongst us, whom we might August over us, to help us forward in our Extasies and Revelations, and to assist us in our patient waiting and expectation of our desired Monarch.

Feak hearing his Brother hint for a King to be chosen and anointed forthwith, and well knowing Sir Harry to be principled and pated fit for the business, steps up in the Congregation, and craving leave to hint a word or two, in order to what his brother Rogers had proposed, bespake them after this manner:

I hope Brethren there is none in this place that will deny the sacred Authority of the Fifth Monarch, whom we have so long look'd for; and though he be not as yet (nor I know not when he will) come to Reigne visibly amongst us, yet we are not to mistrust our Fancies and Imaginations, which are the onely Parents and Authors of our hoped for Regality. Nor do I find it contrary to my will, or our wills and Inclinations (the rules we walk by) to have one chosen & anointed by us, as was provision made, that he shall hold and enjoy the title of the Fifth Monarch, no longer then will be coming of King Jesus, and to him shall peacefully resign both Creator and Government. And that we may remove any obshacle, & plain the way of any dissenting Brother, I shall further hint, and make out, that is the power of choosing a King remaineth and abideth in the people; so the Anointing and Consenting him is set down irrevoeably in the Prophets and Seers of the people in this Congregation there; one being qualified in both parts, and we here being ing the Terrestrial Head of this Fifth and last Monarchy, may, (I do infallibly affirm) Arragatune to our selves in the juncture of time, both the choice and Inauguration of one fit for the undertaking.

After this, Canne had spoke next, but having a little imperfection in his speech, was prevented by a swifter linguist, which was the true principled and pregnant conceited John Symson, who in few words approving and seconding what his brethren had hinted touching the necessity and usefulness (notwithstanding the Vote of Parliament) of a Ling, concluded, with bowing himself towards Sir Harry Vane in token of submission (by which the people knew how to make their choice) and Canne was by this time ready to speak and he did so, and said, Brethren, I desire we may choose Sir Harry Vane King, and that he may be Anointed before the Parliament send him to seek his Fathers Asse.

These several speeches were no sooner ended, having great operations upon the spirits of the Congregation, but they fall to the nomination and election of Sir Harry to be the Fifth Monarch, and soon dispatched their business, who did very well resent, it and in returning thanks, had almost mistaken himself, and was giving them the thanks of the house, as being the language he had been so long us'd to.

Their next work is to Anoint him, which office be performed by the grave and reverend Stiller of strong Waters, John De Wor Canne, who learn'd to Preach

(7)
Preach in Ireland, to print in Holland, to pray in Colemanstreet, and to write Intelligence at Westmin- ster under his Master Nedham: He desired to be excused from that imployment, for that he had never been in France nor any other place where they use anointing, neither had he skill in Oyls; for that he was a Killer of Spirits, and so was ignorant both of the quality and quantity that was to be used: but being furnished and instructed by the more Politick
and knowing, Sir Harry was had up to their high Altar, and in the face of the Congregation, with great solemnity and triumph, the Cruse of Oyle was by Doctor (or Bishop) Canne powred upon his head, with these or the like form of words.

We the onely Saints that are for Monar- chy, to whom only the opinion of Kingship is lawful, having neither the fear nor dread of Parliamentary Authority before our Eyes; have freely elected and chosen thee Fifth Monarch,
to whom and to whose Laws and Edicts, we do promise all obedience until the Coming of our long Expected KING JESUS;
and that thou surrender it to him, and become
subject as we our selves.

After the Office thus performed in the sight of the whole Congregation, an Oath was presented to him in these words:

After

I Sir Harry, being by the providence of these my Brethren, chosen and anointed Fifth Monarch, which I heartily accept of; Doe promise and declare, That I will Countenance and Encourage all Self-endedness and Self-Interests, and the practisers thereof, and will to the uttermost of my power, advance and promote Jesuitical principles and practises; and will daily abet and assist all such who shall make Mischiefs in the Parliament, or Mutinies in the Army. These principles I hereby engage not to revoke, as I tender both You, and lowe Mischief. So be it.

But before it could be administred to him, News was brought of the Order of Parliament for his speedy Confinement, which put a period to their present Meeting; for that he in a forced obedience thereunto, retired into the Bishoprick of Durham, where now this Anointed keeps his Court.

F I N I S.

